That Hidden Treasure.
There is money in that hole or every fortune teller in Jacksonville has lied."

This is what searchers for the chest of Spanish gold are alleged to have said yesterday when asked why they continued to search for the supposed treasure.

Yesterday morning a heavy truck rolled up to the scene of operations and unloaded a 16-horse power engine and several joints of 16-inch pipe. With this engine and the other one now in use the operators expect to secure the treasure, boiler, car wheel or whatever it is in the earth at that point within the next few days.

Although Mills, Lee and the others have been jeered at on several occasions, they stick by their task and declare they will secure the treasure which they are positive is hidden under the earth.—Jacksonville Times Union.

Ye Editor Warned.

The editor of the Bradentown Herald suggested an ordinance against scum running at large in the streets of Bradentown, and it seems that the editor struck a snag in a certain P. McGuire, who wrote this warning, which is a rich piece of humor:

"It's little I thought in coming to this land of liberty to have a democratic paper like the Herald advising the anarchy of the day and the ruin of law and order in telling the Big Marshal of Bradentown to arrest the cow.

"Be jabbers, if he tries it there'll be the big marshal less in Manatee county and some widows in the Herald office to pay for. Me cow is a foine animal as I had one just joike her in the old country, called Rosey. Ye also gave a hint 't the people that they can milk me cow, an' make butter out of the cream; that is nice advice for a democrat, an' be th' holy poker I'll break the head of the man who gave it if any body milks me cow, an' I'll get one o' th' anarkist bum shells an' throw it in some day at the door when ye are sittin' at yer desk in the Herald office written such advice to th' people. Yer doctrin seems to be 'This is a free country but keep off the grass.' Now I tell ye, me cow is goen 't eat grass jist so long as it grows in the streets o' Bradentown, so 'hands off,' both you an' th' big marshal. Now ye's warned an' ye know that a nod is as good as a wink 't a blind horse."—Bartow Record.

A "Little Athens."
Eight hundred Greeks now make their homes at Tarpon Springs, engaged entirely in the sponge industry. Their settlement has the appearance of a western mining town in the "rush" days. Very few of the Greeks can speak English but they have their own shops, restaurants and amusements. In every respect, this "Little Athens" is the most unique community in the state.—Tampa Tribune.

is in the Chicago beef scandal, the Times having evidence to convict some packing house of wanton cruelty and ingratitude to the canine tribe and a lack of regard for the sensibilities and stomachs of the people of America.

In a can of corned beef, opened on the schooner David Crockett, just in port from Pensacola, was found a dog tag bearing these marks: "J. L. & B. 3 S.D." The beef was being prepared for service to the crew of the schooner, but unnecessary to state it wasn't devoured with or without relish. The same is the case with other cans of the same beef on board. From the appearance of the dog tag in the can, it is evident that some Faithful Fido has been converted from a friendly, tail-wagging quadruped into a pound or more of corned beef.

Some employee of the packing house should be fired for being so careless or ignorant as to attempt the impossible task of converting metal into beef. He should have been satisfied with merely making hash of doggie. The Times doesn't know the name of the concern which manufactured the beef, but recent disclosures gives credence to the belief that the corned beef contained in the can was nothing more than dog beef. A tag of the same kind was recently found in a can of beef in another city.—Tampa Times.

Fish Drowned Out.

As to the recent heavy rains falling in Live Oak, the limit has been reached when J. D. Parnell stated today that it had rained so hard that all the fish in a pond near his place were drowned by the down-pour.—Live Oak Democrat.

Cure for Snake Bite.

A sure cure for the bite of a rattlesnake has long been an anxious proposition in Florida. That there is an absolute antidote for the deadly poison injected by the fangs of the rattler was proven conclusively at Jensen last Saturday, when a negro named Adeley was bitten, with no serious results.

About one o'clock, while working in C. H. Roney's orange grove the man was struck by the rattler on the right ankle both fangs having sunk into the flesh and the poison injected into the blood. He was immediately placed on a horse and told to ride for his life to the home of Mrs. E. A. Ireland, whose brother, Dr. Arnold keeps her supplied with anti-venomous serum. In less than fifteen minutes after the man was bitten he was given the serum by Mrs. Ireland and Tandy Bryson.

The effect of the medicine was eminently satisfactory, for he got on remarkably well, and suffering but little except a short while with depression about the heart and lungs. After that the only pain was below the wound and he slept well that night, and has had no serious trouble whatever, the foot being swollen to no great extent.

This serum has been recognized in France for years as a cure for snakebites but has never been encouraged in this country to any extent. A few years ago, Dr. Arnold saw an article on serum for snake bite, written by a French doctor, who asked that some one send a Florida rattler. Dr. Arnold interested himself to get one and sent it. Then later when in Paris he called on the French doctor, who prepared the serum and gave it to Dr. Arnold, who in turn divided with his sister, Mrs. Ireland. Since that time it has been constantly kept in her house for use in emergencies, having instructed all her neighbors in case of need to break into her house and use it.

Last Saturday was the first time necessity has demanded its use, and we are glad to note that the use of the antidote saved a life. Heretofore the bite of a rattler was considered, and usually proved to be certain death.

but now that the curative powers of the serum have been tried and found not wanting, right in our midst, every family should keep the remedy handy. 'Tis true it is seldom needed but when the time does come it's needed badly.—St. Lucie Tribune.

"Pete" Up Against It.

With wild and frenzied look while he frantically tore at the lone lock of hair which decorates his shiny cranium, Pete Allen was described this morning speeding towards Ybor City.

"What's the matter?" yelled a Times man after the distracted government official, but all that could be gathered was a distant wail "My clothes! My clothes!"

Expecting at least a suicide or something equally delightful from a news point of view, the reporter hit up a two-minute clip and pursued the man of letters, finally running him to earth at the laundry of Tom Lee, the late-deceased celestial. Here it was discovered that Tom Lee while he remained on this earth was the devoted washerman of the assistant postmaster, and that from a general melee of clothing it was necessary for him to identify his own particular brand of shirts and other things. Confusion of the mind reigned at the laundry while Mr. Allen and other patrons of the deceased wrangled over their property, each one endeavoring to secure the best and latest styles. Two other celestials who finally appeared upon the scene, however, offered the suggestion to Mr. Allen that as he is a high official in this great country it was possible that Tom Lee had taken his clothing with him to present to Confucius, and should the assistant postmaster be seen within the next few days hurrying to his office with his round corporosity clothed simply in a barrel the public will understand the reason.—Tampa Times.

Dangers of Defective Plumbing

Defective plumbing permits the entrance into the house of sewer gas bearing germs of contagious diseases to which the human system readily succumbs.

Is Your Plumbing System Defective?

Sewer gas is not necessarily generated in the sewer, but is frequently created in the plumbing system within the house and enters the apartments through defective fixtures.

The most dangerous sewer gases are often inodorous and therefore not discovered until ill-health renders necessary an examination of conditions, but often too late to repair the damage done.

If you are in doubt, consult us regarding the piping, also the replacing of defective fixtures with "Standard" Porcelain Enamelled Ware, which is acknowledged the best sanitary equipment in the world.
